

A photograph of a modern, semi-subterranean cabin. The structure features a curved wooden roof and walls made of horizontal wooden planks. Large, multi-paned windows are visible, some of which are partially covered by bare tree branches. To the right, a section of the cabin is constructed from stacked stones. The cabin is situated in a wooded area with many bare trees, suggesting a late autumn or winter setting. In the foreground, there are large, dark, irregular stones and some green foliage. The overall aesthetic is rustic and modern.
